

32nd ASEAN-Australia Forum – Co-Chairs’ Summary

1. The 32nd ASEAN-Australia Forum was held via videoconference on 18 May 2020 to discuss the Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19) pandemic and our shared commitment to advancing the ASEAN-Australia Strategic Partnership. At a time of global uncertainty, continued cooperation between ASEAN and Australia to promote an open, stable and prosperous region remains vital. In this context, the Forum welcomed the cooperation between ASEAN and Australia on COVID-19 and looked forward to the convening of an ad hoc ASEAN-Australia Foreign Ministers’ video conference on COVID-19 in the near future.
2. The Forum was co-chaired by H.E. Dato’ Ahmad Rozian Abd Ghani, Director-General, ASEAN-Malaysia National Secretariat of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Malaysia; and Mr Justin Hayhurst, Australian ASEAN Senior Official and Acting Deputy Secretary of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade of Australia. Representatives from the ASEAN Member States (AMS), Australia and the ASEAN Secretariat (ASEC) participated in the meeting. Australia thanked Malaysia for its ongoing efforts as the Country Coordinator for ASEAN-Australia Dialogue Relations for 2018-2021, and expressed support for Vietnam’s ASEAN Chair theme of a “Cohesive and Responsive ASEAN” in 2020.
3. The Forum acknowledged the substantive ASEAN-Australia Strategic Partnership, which reflects our close regional ties, shared aspirations and common interests for the region. The Forum also discussed cooperation to ensure an open, transparent, inclusive and rules-based order in the region, where international law and the rights of all states are respected and upheld. In this regard, Australia reaffirmed its strong commitment to ASEAN Centrality and warmly welcomed the adoption of the ASEAN Outlook on the Indo-Pacific (AOIP), which reinforces the rules and norms that underpin the region’s sovereignty, peace, stability and prosperity, including by reaffirming shared principles such as ASEAN Centrality, complementarity, openness, transparency, inclusivity, a rules-based framework, equality, mutual respect, mutual trust, mutual benefit and respect for international law. Australia and the AMS agreed to continue working together to advance the AOIP, including through supporting ASEAN initiatives and strengthening practical cooperation with ASEAN in the four key areas defined in the AOIP.

ASEAN and Australia’s Response to COVID-19

4. The Forum expressed its deepest sympathies and condolences to people around the world who have suffered or lost lives due to COVID-19; and commended all medical professionals, healthcare workers and other frontline personnel for their tireless and brave contribution. ASEAN and Australia committed to work closely together to mitigate the health and socio-economic impacts of COVID-19 and support regional recovery, while still ensuring the safety and security of their citizens. The Forum also reaffirmed the importance of a people-centred approach, upholding and integrating human rights and the principles of non-discrimination, participation and inclusion in their responses to the pandemic.

5. Australia welcomed the successful convening and the outcome of the Special ASEAN Summit on COVID-19 on 14 April 2020, which affirmed ASEAN's determination and commitment to remain united and effectively respond to control the spread of the disease while mitigating its adverse impact on ASEAN people's livelihood, societies and economies, in line with the spirit of a Cohesive and Responsive ASEAN Community.
6. The Forum recalled that as ASEAN's first Dialogue Partner, Australia has long recognised and valued ASEAN's central role in advancing regional peace, stability and prosperity. As in past crises, the vital importance of ASEAN's role has become even more apparent as we work to mitigate the impacts of COVID-19. Addressing the challenges of the COVID-19 pandemic is the highest priority for all our governments. Australia reaffirmed its support for ASEAN in taking a central role in advancing an ongoing regional response to COVID-19 and the critical importance of ASEAN-led regional architecture, including the East Asia Summit (EAS), in this regard.
7. The Forum also recognised the well-established networks and platforms under the ASEAN Health Division, and the need to leverage these platforms to address the challenges of the COVID-19 pandemic. The Forum reaffirmed the importance of international collaboration and AMS and Australia's shared commitment to work with the World Health Organisation (WHO), other relevant international organisations, international financial institutions, and the broader global community to enhance collective pandemic preparedness and response, and support a sustained economic recovery. Participants noted that WHO is a key partner and has done important work in leading the global response and supporting preparedness in the region. As the world confronts this dangerous pandemic, it is critical that the WHO continues to play a strong and transparent role in addressing this pandemic and other global health emergencies in the future in close consultation with all member states.
8. Given the unprecedented scale of the current crisis and the continued threat of future pandemics, it is vital that the world is able to collectively learn the lessons we need from this crisis so we are better prepared to prevent and respond to similar, or potentially even greater, challenges in the future. AMS noted Australia's call for an independent review of the COVID-19 outbreak in order for the global community to better prepare for future pandemics. The Forum noted that any such review should be independent, impartial, objective and occur at the right time once the immediacy of responding to the COVID-19 outbreak has subsided.

9. The Forum discussed the COVID-19 pandemic and its socio-economic impact on regional communities, health systems, and supply chains, underlining the need for close consultation and cooperation on these impacts and longer-term efforts to build resilience and preparedness. AMS and Australia emphasised their commitment and resolve to strengthen regional efforts for the surveillance, detection and control of COVID-19 in collaboration with partners; sharing of experience and best practices in epidemiological research, clinical treatment, research and development of vaccines, drugs and diagnostics; as well as the importance of timely, transparent and accurate information sharing with the WHO and international partners, to ensure effective risk communications and reporting. The Forum reaffirmed the value of the ASEAN-Australia Strategic Partnership in this regard and welcomed enhanced cooperation to address COVID-19. Australia looked forward to learning more about the ASEAN COVID-19 Response Fund and the ASEAN Regional Medical Reserve.
10. The Forum welcomed AMS and Australian efforts to curb the spread of COVID-19 through public health and other measures to prevent, detect, control and mitigate the disease. Participants agreed to continue sharing best practices and enhancing cooperation to address the pandemic's public health impacts such as through ASEAN-Australia Health Security Fellows' work to boost critical field epidemiology capacity and the Australian Indo-Pacific Centre for Health Security. Participants welcomed collaboration between Australia's premier health and medical research institutions and regional partners on infectious disease prevention, detection, control and response, including in the ASEAN-Pacific Infectious Disease Detection and Response program; and through work to address zoonotic diseases and hygiene practices at live animal wet markets. AMS welcomed Australia's support for global efforts to find a COVID-19 vaccine, and antiviral medicines, and encouraged collaboration in manufacturing the vaccine, once it is developed, to ensure its affordability, equitable access and sufficient amount available in the region.
11. The Forum also welcomed AMS and Australian measures to promote economic stability and resilience in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. Participants reaffirmed their shared commitment: to upholding an inclusive, transparent and rules-based multilateral trading system, open regionalism and rejecting protectionism in response to rising protectionist sentiment; and maintaining effective supply chains to ensure the flow of essential goods such as food, commodities, medical supplies and medicines; and to ensure trade measures taken in response to COVID-19 are targeted, proportionate, transparent, temporary and consistent with World Trade Organization (WTO) rules. The Forum agreed an open, rules-based global trading system and active engagement in WTO reform will be key to global economic recovery.

12. Australia welcomed the ASEAN Defence Ministers' Meeting (ADMM) Retreat's endorsement on 19 February 2020 of the need for a collective response to the COVID-19 outbreak and its commitment to promoting defence cooperation, including in information sharing and military medicine. Australia looks forward to exploring activities to support the region's response to COVID-19 through its longstanding defence cooperation with ASEAN. Examples included co-chairing with Brunei Darussalam the ASEAN-Defence Ministers' Meeting Plus (ADMM-Plus) Experts Working Group on Military Medicine in 2020-2023 and involvement in the proposed ADMM COVID-19 Table Top Exercise (TTX) on 27 May 2020 within the framework of the ASEAN Centre for Military Medicine.
13. The Forum acknowledged that it is in the mutual interest of ASEAN and Australia to safeguard the safety, health and well-being of their nationals residing in each other's countries. ASEAN and Australia stand ready to provide necessary support and appropriate assistance to nationals of AMS and Australia who visit, stay, work and study in each other's countries if they are affected by the pandemic, and to enable their return should they wish to. In this regard, ASEAN expressed gratitude to the Australian Government for helping ASEAN students studying in Australia during the COVID-19 outbreak.
14. Australia further noted that its development cooperation programs with ASEAN (and several member states) were already pivoting to focus on the impacts of COVID-19. The ASEAN-Australia Development Cooperation Program Phase II (AADCP II) is supporting the development of ASEAN priority logistics routes to sustain and facilitate vital regional supply chains; TRIANGLE in ASEAN is helping thousands of migrant workers who are particularly vulnerable at this uncertain time; the ASEAN-Australia Counter Trafficking Program is mitigating the risk of exploitation and human trafficking for women, children and other vulnerable groups who might be at higher risk due to impacts of COVID-19; the Economic Research Institute for ASEAN and East Asia is providing policy advice on mitigating COVID-19 impacts and promoting ASEAN's economic recovery; and Australia is supporting the ASEAN Secretariat (ASEC) to conduct rapid assessments on the impact of COVID-19 focused on 'second wave crises' such as those relating to livelihoods, social welfare, migrant labour, informal workers and other vulnerable groups. The Forum discussed how ASEAN and Australia could further enhance cooperation on the COVID-19 crisis through these and other initiatives.
15. ASEAN and Australia also agreed to work closely together in post-pandemic recovery efforts, including sustaining the normal flow of trade and investment, minimising disruptions to regional and global supply chains, restoring growth and preventing risks posed by the global economic recession.
